Water Proposal Doesn't Look Good.

Parallels Parley's and Cottonwood Contracts for Public's Comparison.

Asks Taxpayers to Decide Whether or Not City Is Getting a Square Deal

Editor Tribune:-Inasmuch as it has been stated by the city officials that the proposed contract for the conditional exchange of the water of the Salt Lake and Jordan canal for that of the Big Cottonwood was much more favorable to the city than what is known as the "Parley's canyon contract," I beg to submit the situation developed today in the criminal anch of the Supreme court, when Nan Patterson, on trial before Justice Vernon M. Davis, for the murder of Caesar Young, stood up in the courtroom and faced Pawnbroker Hymen Stern, the man who sold the revolver with which Young was killed.

Stern was unable to identify the prison er as the woman who accompanied the man to whom he sold the revolver. was not certain whether the man had a nooth face or wore a mustache. He was ot asked to identify the photograph of J. Morgan Smith.

Police Capt. Sweeney was recalled and identified the photograph. He said that he saw Smith on June 8 last and gave him a grand jury subpoena. Objection was made to the introduction as evidence of a copy of a subpoena served by the witness, and the jury was excused while Justice Davis listened to arguments of counsel.

There were nearly 160 lumbermen present from Puget sound, British Columbia, Gray's harbor and the Columbia river district.

No action was taken regarding the closing down of mills, but it was decided to adopt five and a quarter-inch face as the standard for drop siding, so as to be uniform with the Western Pine and Southern associations. The matter of grades and inspections was discussed at length, but no action was discussed at length, but no action was taken, this being left in the hands of the committee. George H. Emerson of Hoquiam, chairman of the committee on legislation, presented an important report regarding measures which it is desired to have passed, while Frank H. Lamb, representing the Gray's Harbor Loggers' association made recommendations from a legislative standpoint as desired by the loggers.

Two Caves Explored Near Dubois, Ida.

Freaks in Lava Formation That Prove Interesting to a Couple of Travelers.

Special to The Tribune BLACKFOOT, Ida., Dec. 13-On the ber, 1994, the writer was in Dubots, Ida., a village on the Oregon Short Line railroad fifty miles north of Idaho Falls and thirty from the Montana State line.

Dubols lies near the northern edge of the great lava, sand and sagebrush plain of the Snake river, which stretches away for hundreds of miles to the south and southwest. To the west and northwest lie the Yest River and Salmon River mountains, to the north the main range of the Rockles, which here forms the continental divide; to the east the mountain knots composing a portion of that wonderland, the Yellowstone National park, while to the southwest and seventy-five miles distant, but in plain view, rise the sharp peaks of the rugged and lofty Tetons, crowned with everlasting snow. At this time all the higher parts of the mountain rim, especially the Park mountains, were white with a considerable full of new snow. couthwest. To the west and northwest lic white with a considerable fall of now snow.

The chief reasons Dubois has for being on the map are that it is the freighting point for the mining country to the north-nest, while its location makes it the head-quarters for the helper engines required to overcome the heavy grades from here to the continental divide at Monida. A great deal of ore is shipped from here after a wagon hapl of eighty-five miles. Forty teams were engaged in this work this year, and the spring of 1905 will see about seventy so employed.

Village Almost Deserted.

Village Almost Deserted.

Camas, eleven miles south, was once the point to which this business went, and was then a flourishing town of several hundred people. It is now deserted. Of the 160 houses once there less than half a dozen remain, and if it were not for the few ranches a little farther up Camas creek the public school would have to be closed for want of pupils.

Having a few hours of leisure in Dubois and knowing that in this section of the great lava beds were several extinct craters and a number of caves, we—a young traveling man and myself—determined to see some of them if persible on inquiry we learned that there was a cave about a mile north of town. Armed with a railroad torch borrowed from the roundhouse and minute instructions for finding the entrance to the cave, we set forth. After wandering about in the sagebrush until we began to suspect that we had been bunkoed, we finally found the entrance. It is simply a circular hole in the rocky desert and is about forty feet in diameter and twenty-five feet deep.

We clambered down over broken masses of rock and were soon in the Exyptian darkness of the cavern. In general form it resombles a tunnel or subway, and its regularity is surprising. Its breadth is perhaps thirty-five feet and is nearly uniform throughout the several hundred feet that we explored. The sides and roof are of solid black lawa, the roof being everywhere arched almost as perfectly as if it had been done by the hand of man. In the center the roof is from ten to twenty feet high.

The floor is of sand, smooth, solid and dry, and evidently deposited by the action of water. Here and there the floor is littered, and in some places the passage almost blocked by masses of rock that have fallen from the roof. This end of the cavern has been explored for a distance of 2000 feet, where it becomes so filled with sand and choked with fallen rock that further progress could be made only by removing the observations.

Still Another Cavern.

At the opposite side of the hole which afthe dense blackness and not a sound of any kind can be heard. The cave is very dry and dusty except for a short distance from the entrance, where it is doubtless flooded for a time whenever a heavy rain falls. In all parts of the cave sre many bones, doubtless carried there by wolves, covotes and bobcots.

How was the cavern formed and how long has it been, there? Was it once a subterranean river? W. R. DUVALLA

"Besides the large number of Salt Lake City people who have been cured and made well and strong by Vinol, we receive many letters like the following.

"Hon. H. Mason of Jacksonville, Fa., writes. 'A couple of months ago I contracted a severe cold, which it seemed impossible to cure. It settled on my lungs, causing a hard cough, which kept me awake nights, and soon weskened my system so that I was unable to attend to my dutes. Vinol was recommended to me by a friend and I began to take it as directed. The second night I had only one coughing spell, and within a week I was not disturbed once during the night.

"Naturally my progress was fast after this, and my lungs healed randdly, my strength returned and I gained in flesh and health. In fact, this medicine restored me to a perfect condition, and now I feel much better and younger than I have for years. I certainly think it is a wonderful remedy to build up a run down system.
